	Access to the HSDL Collection and the News Digest Collection Most Homeland Security Digital Library (HSDL) resources are not openly available to the public at large. Full access to the HSDL Collection and the News Digest Collection is available to homeland security officials and academics for research, analysis, and policy and strategy development. Access is offered to U.S. citizens who are: federal, state, tribal, and local U.S. government officials; members of the U.S. military; homeland security researchers and academics; or security staff protecting organizations vital to U.S. infrastructure. There are two options for getting full access to the HSDL Collection and the News Digest Collection. You may want to utilize both.	Password If you have forgotten your password, use the Forgot my password feature to send yourself an email containing instructions on how to reset it [link opens the NPS Center for Homeland Defense and Security (CHDS) website]. This email will be sent to the email address that serves as your website login name. If you do not receive the email in a timely way, check your spam filter - messages are easily filtered out.
	An individual account is a password-protected account, specific to you, that you can use anywhere, any time. With an individual account, you can take advantage of special and personalized features such as Email Alerts and My Lists; both are ways to access and organize information according to your requirements. An individual account is required for those who request access the Restricted Collection. Request an individual account now (link will take you to the NPS Center for Homeland Defense and Security website). Organization-wide access allows eligible U.S. military installations, U.S. government agencies, and U.S. research institutions direct access to the HSDL without a login. Access is limited to the specified IPs or domain of that organization (e.g., a building or a campus). Please contact hsdl@nps.edu for further information regarding this type of access. Access to the Restricted Collection Access to the Restricted Collection is limited to U.S. government officials (at the local, state, tribal or federal level) and	Username/Login Name Your username/login name is the email address you submitted to us when you signed up for the account. It is most likely your official email address, as we only accept personal, commercial accounts under certain circumstances. To manage your email addresses, login to your account profile on the NPS Center for Homeland Defense and Security (CHDS) website.
	Access to the Restricted Collection is limited to U.S. government officials (at the local, state, tribal or federal level) and active members of the U.S. military. Users requesting access must have an individual HSDL account and be granted an additional level of authorization. To obtain this access, either login above with an existing account or begin by requesting an individual account . Once that account is confirmed, return and request access to the Restricted Collection.	If you have problems or need to update your email address, contact techsupport@chds.us or call 831-272 -2437.

Executive Order on Improving Critical Infrastructure Cybersecurity

Submitted by smcortez on Wed, 02/13/2013 - 13:38

Yesterday, President Obama signed an Executive Order on Improving Critical Infrastructure Cybersecurity.

From the Executive Order: "Repeated cyber intrusions into critical infrastructure demonstrate the need for improved cybersecurity. The cyber threat to critical infrastructure continues to grow and represents one of the most serious national security challenges we must confront. The national and economic security of the United States depends on the reliable functioning of the Nation's critical infrastructure in the face of such threats. It is the policy of the United States to enhance the security and resilience of the Nation's critical infrastructure and to maintain a cyber environment that encourages efficiency, innovation, and economic prosperity while promoting safety, security, business confidentiality, privacy, and civil liberties."

The Executive Order seeks to strengthen "the U.S. Government's partnership with critical infrastructure owners and operators to address cyber threats" by:

- · Establishing new information sharing programs to provide classified and unclassified threat information to U.S. companies
- · Developing a Cybersecurity Framework, led by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST)
- · Maintaining strong privacy and civil liberties protections
- Identifying critical infrastructure at greatest risk
- · Reviewing and improving existing cybersecurity regulation
- Creating a voluntary critical infrastructure cybersecurity program to support the adoption of the Cybersecurity Framework

Scientist Examine the Impact of Climate Change on U.S. National Security

Submitted by fgibson on Wed, 02/13/2013 - 12:27

A new report from Harvard University's Center for the Environment titled "Climate Extremes: Recent Trends with Implications for National Security" identifies security risks from extreme weather and climate change.

The increasing number of extreme weather events such as, floods, drought, heat waves, and severe storms spurs scientist to drar connection between increasing greenhouse gases and extreme weather. This new study was conducted to examine the potenti impact extreme weather events will have on national security planning.

The authors of the report asked the following questions in regard to the coming decade:

"Would these anomalous climate extremes persist?"

"To what extent are the extreme conditions a result of natural variability or greenhouse warming?"
