Introduction

- “Do you have anything to help me make my own will?”
- “How do I fight this traffic ticket?”
- “My deadbeat landlord never fixes anything; can I sue him?”
- “I’ve invented the world’s greatest contraption! Now I need a patent.”
The self-help legal patron

(a.k.a. “pro se” patron)
Legal reference ≠ legal advice!

- Be very clear with pro se patrons about the limits to your assistance.
- Their expectations can be unrealistic!

Policy on Legal Reference and Legal Advice:

Reference librarians help you use the library and its collections, but they cannot do legal research for you. Librarians locate information, identify relevant resources, develop search strategies for catalogs, databases, the web and indexes and provide assistance in legal research methodology. The reference staff cannot provide substantive advice on a legal problem, interpret legal materials for you, or explain how the law applies to your particular case.
Referral services [Duke Law]

Legal Referrals

Duke Law students working with the Pro Bono Project cannot do legal work or give legal advice to members of the public. Students may only work under the supervision of a licensed attorney at an organization approved and screened by the Office of Public Interest and Pro Bono. (However law school clinics do accept cases through which students assist the attorney-instructors of the clinics. Use the link to the clinics below to see if a clinic works in your area of need and contact those clinics.)

The organizations listed below provide legal information or, in some cases, legal representation. These referrals are not an endorsement of any organization or website.

Resources Associated with Duke Law

- Duke Law School’s Clinics
- The North Carolina Center on Actual Innocence

The North Carolina Center works in conjunction with Innocence Projects at both Duke and UNC Law Schools in providing assistance to inmates making claims of actual innocence. The assistance is limited to those convicted of North Carolina crimes who have already concluded their direct appeals from the convictions.

Resources in North Carolina
ABA’s FindLegalHelp.org

- State-by-state links to lawyer referral services (mostly through state bar associations).

- Not free, but usually a low-cost initial consultation.
Referrals to Law Libraries

- Area law school & court libraries may have more specialized collections to help the determined pro se researcher.

- But your own library may have more than you realize, in the form of secondary sources.

§ 454 Generally

Generally, a landlord is under no obligation to a tenant to repair, unless there is a contract creating a duty to repair. The common law does not impose any obligation upon the landlord to repair the premises, in the absence of an agreement to do so. However, a landlord is under a duty to keep the portions of the leased premises that are under his or her control, such as common areas used by more than one tenant, in a reasonably safe condition, and is liable for damages resulting from his or her failure to do so.

However, under the implied warranty of habitability, a landlord is required to make repairs and replacements of vital facilities. The duty of the landlord to a tenant is two-fold: (1) prior to possession by the tenant, the landlord has a duty to reasonably inspect the premises, and to make necessary repairs to transfer a reasonably safe dwelling unit, unless the tenant waives the defect; and (2) after possession by the tenant, the landlord has a continuing duty to exercise reasonable care in repairing dangerous defective conditions upon the tenant giving notice of their existence, unless waived by the tenant. While a landlord is not a guarantor for the safety of those persons who might be expected to come upon its property, it does have a duty to make all repairs and do whatever is necessary to put and keep the premises in a fit and habitable condition.

A landlord may shift the responsibility for performing ordinary specified repairs and maintenance of the rented dwelling premises to the tenant, provided that the parties act in good faith, the parties agree in writing, the agreement is supported by adequate consideration, and the agreement is not for work necessary to cure noncompliance with building and housing codes affecting health and safety.

Where the warranty of habitability does not apply according to the law of the jurisdiction, absent a retention of control or an agreement to maintain the premises, a landlord is not obligated to make repairs on leased premises, even if the premises are in a dangerous condition. Furthermore, the general rule is that, absent an explicit covenant to the contrary, the lessor of nonresidential space has no duty to repair or maintain that portion of the premises leased to the lessee, except to the extent that he or she retains control over an area used in common by the public or other tenants.

Footnotes:

As to an agreement by the landlord to repair, see §§ 460 to 463.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE LAWS

Public and private laws are also known as slip laws. A slip law is an official publication of the law and is commonly found in all state and Federal courts and tribunals of the United States. Public laws affect society as a whole, while private laws affect an individual, family, or small group.

After the President signs a bill into law, it is delivered to the Office of the Federal Register (OFR), National Archives Records Administration (NARA) where it is assigned a law number, legal statutory citation (public laws only), and for publication as a slip law. Private laws receive their legal statutory citations when they are published in the United States Statutes at Large.

Prior to publication as a slip law, OFR also prepares marginal notes and citations for each law, and a legislative history for public laws. When a slip law is published, through the U.S. Government Printing Office (GPO), the text of the law can be found by accessing the enrolled version of the bill. About Public and Private Laws.

§5491. Establishment of the Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection

(a) Bureau established

There is established in the Federal Reserve System, an independent bureau to be known as the “Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection”, which shall regulate the offering and provision of consumer financial products or services under the Federal consumer financial laws. The Bureau shall be considered an Executive agency, as defined in section 105 of title 5. Except as otherwise provided expressly by law, all Federal laws dealing with public or Federal contracts, property, works, officers, employees, budgets, or funds, including the provisions of chapters 5 and 7 of title 5, shall apply to the exercise of the powers of the Bureau.

(b) Director and Deputy Director

(1) In general

There is established the position of the Director, who shall serve as the head of the Bureau.
(B) serve as acting Director in the absence of unavailability of the Director.

(c) Term

(1) In general
   The Director shall serve for a term of 5 years.

(2) Expiration of term
   An individual may serve as Director after the expiration of the term for which appointed, until a successor has been appointed and qualified.

(3) Removal for cause
   The President may remove the Director for inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office.

(d) Service restriction
   No Director or Deputy Director may hold any office, position, or employment in any Federal reserve bank, Federal home loan bank, covered person, or service provider during the period of service of such person as Director or Deputy Director.

(e) Offices
   The principal office of the Bureau shall be in the District of Columbia. The Director may establish regional offices of the Bureau, including in cities in which the Federal reserve banks, or branches of such banks, are located, in order to carry out the responsibilities assigned to the Bureau under the Federal consumer financial laws.

(a) Compliance with this subdivision.

(8) Within a reasonable period of time based upon the severity of the condition, repair or remedy any imminently dangerous condition on the premises after acquiring actual knowledge or receiving notice of the condition. Notwithstanding the landlord’s repair or remedy of any imminently dangerous condition, the landlord may recover from the tenant the actual and reasonable costs of repairs that are the fault of the tenant. For purposes of this subdivision, the term "imminently dangerous condition" means any of the following:

a. Unsafe wiring.

b. Unsafe flooring or steps.

c. Unsafe ceilings or roofs.

d. Unsafe chimneys or flues.

e. Lack of potable water.

f. Lack of operable locks on all doors leading to the outside.

g. Broken windows or lack of operable locks on all windows on the ground level.

h. Lack of operable heating facilities capable of heating living areas to 65 degrees Fahrenheit when it is 20 degrees Fahrenheit outside from and is not made with the purpose or effect of evading the landlord's obligations under this Article. The Executive Branch

Rules/Regulations
The rulemaking process

Delegation

- Legislature assigns ("delegates") its rulemaking power to executive branch agency or department.
- Usually highly technical or specialized area.

Promulgation

- Executive agency now has power to make ("promulgate") rules/regulations within the scope of the legislature’s grant of power.
- Once promulgated, regulations have the same force of law as if the legislature had passed it.
“Notice & comment” rulemaking

Proposed rule is announced and published in administrative register.

Period for public comments to the regulating body.

Finalized rule is re-published in administrative register with summary of public comments.

Current rules in force are codified in an administrative code.

§5512. Rulemaking authority

(a) In general
   The Bureau is authorized to exercise its authorities under Federal consumer financial law to administer, enforce, and otherwise implement the provisions of Federal consumer financial law.

(b) Rulemaking, orders, and guidance
   (1) General authority
      The Director may prescribe rules and issue orders and guidance, as may be necessary or appropriate to enable the Bureau to administer and carry out the purposes and objectives of the Federal consumer financial laws, and to prevent evasions thereof.

   (2) Standards for rulemaking
      In prescribing a rule under the Federal consumer financial laws-
      (A) the Bureau shall consider-
         (i) the potential benefits and costs to consumers and covered persons, including the potential reduction of access by consumers to consumer financial products or services resulting from such rule; and
         (ii) the impact of proposed rules on covered persons, as described in section 5516 of this title, and the impact on consumers in rural areas;

      (B) the Bureau shall consult with the appropriate prudential regulators or other Federal agencies prior to proposing a rule and during the comment process regarding consistency with prudential, market, or systemic objectives administered by such agencies; and
      (C) if, during the consultation process described in subparagraph (B), a prudential regulator provides the Bureau with a

Truth in Lending (Regulation Z)

AGENCY: Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection.

ACTION: Proposed rule; request for public comment.

SUMMARY: The Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection (Bureau) is proposing to amend Regulation Z, which implements the Truth in Lending Act (TILA), and the official interpretation to the regulation, which interprets the requirements of Regulation Z. Regulation Z generally prohibits a card issuer from opening a credit card account for a consumer, or increasing the credit limit applicable to a credit card account, unless the card issuer considers the consumer’s ability to make the required payments under the terms of such account. Regulation Z currently requires that issuers consider the consumer’s independent ability to pay, regardless of the consumer’s age; in contrast, TILA expressly requires consideration of an independent ability to pay only for applicants who are under the age of 21. The Bureau requests comment on proposed amendments that would remove the independent ability-to-pay requirement for consumers who are 21 and older, and permit issuers to consider income to which such consumers have a reasonable expectation of access.

DATES: Comments must be received on or before January 7, 2013.

requirements. Section 127(c)(8)(B) sets forth those requirements and provides that “an application to open a credit card account by a consumer who has not attained the age of 21 as of the date of submission of the application shall require * * * (i) the signature of a cosigner, including the parent, legal guardian, spouse, or any other individual who has attained the age of 21 having a means to repay debts incurred by the consumer in connection with the account, indicating joint liability for debts incurred by the consumer in connection with the account before the consumer has attained the age of 21; or * * * (ii) submission by the consumer of financial information, including through an application, indicating an independent means of repaying any obligation arising from the proposed extension of credit in connection with the account.”

On January 12, 2010, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (Board) issued a final rule (January 2010 Final Rule) implementing new TILA Sections 150 and 127(c)(8) in a new 12 CFR 226.51. The general rule in § 226.51(a) provided, in part, that “[a] card issuer must not open a credit card account for a consumer under an open-end (not home-secured) consumer credit plan, or increase any limit applicable to such account, unless the card issuer considers the ability of the consumer to make the required minimum periodic payments under the terms of the account based on the consumer’s income or assets and current obligations.” Consistent with the statute, § 226.51(b) set forth a special rule for consumers who are less than 21 years old and provided, in part, that a card issuer may not open a credit card account for a consumer less than 21 years old unless the consumer has
Final Rule – FR (again) / Comments on Regulations.gov

DATES: The rule is effective on May 3, 2013. Compliance with the rule is required by November 4, 2013. Card issuers may, at their option, comply with the final rule prior to this date.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:
I. Summary of the Final Rule
The Credit Card Accountability Responsibility and Disclosure Act (Credit Card Act) was enacted in 2009 as an amendment to the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) to address concerns that certain practices in the credit card industry were not transparent or fair to consumers. As amended, TILA section 150 generally prohibits a card issuer from opening a credit card account or increasing a line of credit for any consumer unless it considers the consumer’s ability to make the required payments under the terms of the account. TILA section 127(c)(8) establishes special requirements for consumers under 21 and, among other things, prohibits a card issuer from extending credit to younger consumers unless the consumer’s written application is cosigned by a person 21 or older with the means to make the required payments, or the card issuer has financial information that indicates the consumer’s independent ability to make the required payments under the terms of the account. The statutory requirements in TILA sections 150 and 127(c)(8) are implemented in section 1026.51(a) and (b) of Regulation Z, respectively. Notwithstanding TILA’s different ability-to-pay standards for effective date, although covered persons may come into compliance before that date.

The final rule has four main elements.
First, the final rule generally removes references to an “independent” ability-to-pay standard from § 1026.51(a)(1) and associated commentary. As a result, card issuers are no longer required to consider whether consumers age 21 or older have an independent ability to pay; instead, card issuers are now required by Regulation Z to consider the consumer’s ability to pay. Second, in determining a consumer’s ability to pay, the final rule permits issuers to consider income or assets to which an applicant or accountholder who is 21 or older—and thus subject to § 1026.51(a) rather than § 1026.51(b) — has a reasonable expectation of access. The final rule clarifies by examples in the commentary those circumstances in which the expectation of access is deemed to be reasonable or unreasonable. Third, the final rule continues to require in § 1026.51(b)(1)(i) that consumers under the age of 21 without a cosigner or similar party who is 21 years or older have an independent ability to pay, consistent with TILA section 127(c)(8). Finally, the final rule clarifies that application of the independent ability-to-pay standard to consumers under 21, consistent with Regulation Z, does not violate the Regulation B prohibition against age-based discrimination.

II. Background
The Credit Card Accountability Responsibility and Disclosure Act of 2009 (Credit Card Act) was signed into law on May 22, 2009. The Credit Card Act primarily amended the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) and instituted new substantive and disclosure requirements to establish fair and transparent amendments to Regulation Z that it believes are more consistent with the plain language and intent of the Credit Card Act.

In response to the proposal, the Bureau received over 300 comments from individual consumers, consumer groups, trade groups, retailers, banks, credit unions, card issuers, and other financial institutions. Based on a review of these comments and its own analysis, the Bureau adopts the amendments to § 1026.51 substantially as proposed, with several edits and clarifications to address issues raised by the commenters.

III. Legal Authority
The Bureau issues this final rule pursuant to its authority under TILA, the Dodd-Frank Act, and the Credit Card Act. Effective July 21, 2011, section 1061 of the Dodd-Frank Act transferred to the Bureau the “consumer financial protection functions” previously vested in certain other Federal agencies. The term “consumer financial protection functions” is defined to include “all authority to prescribe rules or issue orders or guidelines pursuant to any Federal consumer financial law, including performing appropriate functions to promulgate and review such rules, orders, and guidelines.” TILA is a Federal consumer financial law. Accordingly, effective July 21, 2011, except with respect to persons excluded from the Bureau’s rulemaking authority by sections 1027 and 1029 of the Dodd-Frank Act, the authority of the Board to issue regulations pursuant to TILA transferred to the Bureau.

TILA, as amended by the Dodd-Frank Act, authorizes the Bureau to “prescribe regulations to carry out the purposes of [TILA].” These “regulations may contain such additional requirements, classifications, differentiations, or other provisions with regard to such regulations as the Bureau may prescribe.”

Title 12: Banks and Banking
PART 1026—TRUTH IN LENDING (REGULATION Z)
Subpart G—Special Rules Applicable to Credit Card Accounts and Open-End Credit Offered to College Students

§ 1026.51 Ability to Pay.

(a) General rule —(1)(i) Consideration of ability to pay. A card issuer must not open a credit card account for a consumer under an open-end (not home-secured) consumer credit plan, or increase any credit limit applicable to such account, unless the card issuer considers the consumer’s ability to make the required minimum periodic payments under the terms of the account based on the consumer’s income or assets and the consumer’s current obligations.

(ii) Reasonable policies and procedures. Card issuers must establish and maintain reasonable written policies and procedures to consider the consumer’s ability to make the required minimum payments under the terms of the account based on a consumer’s income or assets and a consumer’s current obligations. Reasonable policies and procedures include treating any income and assets to which the consumer has a reasonable expectation of access as the consumer’s income or assets, or limiting consideration of the consumer’s income or assets to the consumer’s independent income and assets. Reasonable policies and procedures also include consideration of at least one of the § 42-42. Landlord to provide fit premises.

(a) The landlord shall:

(8) Within a reasonable period of time based upon the severity of the condition, repair or remedy any imminently dangerous condition on the premises after acquiring actual knowledge or receiving notice of the condition. Notwithstanding the landlord's repair or remedy of any imminently dangerous condition, the landlord may recover from the tenant the actual and reasonable costs of repairs that are the fault of the tenant. For purposes of this subdivision, the term "imminently dangerous condition" means any of the following:

a. Unsafe wiring.
b. Unsafe flooring or carpeting.
c. Unsafe ceilings or roofs.
d. Unsafe chimneys or flues.
e. Lack of potable water.
f. Lack of operable locks on all doors leading to the outside.
g. Broken windows or lack of operable locks on all windows on the ground level.

But what if it’s a broken window screen?
Annotated code case notes

Since the duty to keep the common areas in a safe condition implies the duty to make reasonable inspection and to correct an unsafe condition which a reasonable inspection might reveal, such a breach of duty would constitute actionable negligence on defendants' part and would support a verdict for plaintiff. Lenz v. Ridgewood Assocs., 55 N.C. App. 115, 284 S.E.2d 702 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 300, 290 S.E.2d 702 (1982).

A violation of this statute amounts to evidence of negligence, not negligence per se, and as such requires the application of common law principles of negligence to determine a landlord's liability. Bradley v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 90 N.C. App. 581, 369 S.E.2d 86 (1980).

STANDARD OF CARE WAS NOT MERE COMPLIANCE WITH SUBDIVISION (A)(1). --Where complaint alleged that defendants were negligent in design and construction of apartment, where defendant argued standard of care was compliance with state and local building and housing codes, and where defendant pointed out that apartment's plans, specifications, materials, and construction conformed in all respects to subdivision (a)(1), compliance with statutory standard was only evidence of due care, and compliance with this section did not insulate landlords from liability for defects in building design or construction. Collingwood v. General Elec. Real Estate Equities, Inc., 324 N.C. 63, 376 S.E.2d 425 (1989).

STANDARD OF CARE AS TO HABITABILITY. --Absent an express agreement to install or repair protective window screens, landlord not liable for injuries to child falling through window. Landlord has no common law duty to provide or maintain such screens. Mudusar v. V.G. Murray & Co., 100 N.C. App. 395, 396 S.E.2d 325 (1990).

As agent/manager of property defendant had actual authority to repair and keep the premises in a fit and habitable condition and had failed to do so during plaintiff's tenancy; therefore, as landlord, defendant's violation of this section subjected him to liability for rent abatement. Surratt v. Newton, 99 N.C. App. 396, 393 S.E.2d 554 (1990).

STANDARD OF CARE AS TO HABITABILITY. --Absent an express agreement to install or repair protective window screens, landlord not liable for injuries to child falling through window. Landlord has no common law duty to provide or maintain such screens. Mudusar v. V.G. Murray & Co., 100 N.C. App. 395, 396 S.E.2d 325 (1990).

As agent/manager of property defendant had actual authority to repair and keep the premises in a fit and habitable condition and had failed to do so during plaintiff's tenancy; therefore, as landlord, defendant's violation of this section subjected him to liability for rent abatement. Surratt v. Newton, 99 N.C. App. 396, 393 S.E.2d 554 (1990).

NO BREACH OF IMPLIED WARRANTY OF HABITABILITY. -- Failure of landlord or building manager to install or maintain window screens not a breach of implied warranty of habitability since screens did comply with local housing code. Mudusar v. V.G. Murray & Co., 100 N.C. App. 395, 396 S.E.2d 325 (1990).

The proper measure of damages in a rent abatement action based on a breach of the implied warranty of habitability is the difference between the fair rental value of the property in a warranted condition and the fair rental value of the property in its unwarranted condition, provided, however, the damages do not exceed the total amount of rent paid by the tenant; and the tenant is entitled to any special and consequential damages allowed and proved.
